SEA BATTLE OF JUTLAND IS DESCRIBED

Official Narrative Of Naval Engagement Is Made Public.

THE INSIDE DOPE

British Grand Fleet and High Fleet of Germany Fought Battle of Jutland on May 31, 1916.

VOSTON, Dec. 5. (AP)—What went on behind the mists that hung over the North Sea while the British Grand Fleet and the High Seas Fleet of Germany fought the Battle of Jutland on May 31, 1916 is described in new terms by the British Admiralty eight years later, and its official narrative of this outstanding naval engagement of the World War, recently issued, ocnforms to an American version of the facts.

It had been announced by the admiralty, at a time when controversy was rife in high British naval circles, that no official account of the Jutland engagement would be given out. A Blue Book in 1920 had contained the original British charts and reports. But when Lord Sydenham, raising a formal question in the House of Lords, pointed out that an American historian, Captain Thomas G. Frothingham, U. S. R., of Boston, had made clear certain essential facts of the battle that called for a change in the British official charts, renewed attention was given to the battle details.

The British admiralty's own narrative, issued now as an official document of 120 pages with new charts and new conclusions, is the result.

It was the surprising strategy of der of the German forces, in executing three times within a space of 42 minutes, twice in defense and once in attack, a battle manoeuvre Admiral Reinold Scheer, commanwhich the British high command had declared impossible of execution, that upset all British calculations as to what had occurred. This manoeuvre was a simultaneous turn of 16 battle ships like the about face of marching men, with each ship swing around almost in its own tracks.

It was the Yankee historian, an army officer during the World War, who first brought to light the facts of Admiral Scheer's amazing strategy and tactics in a monograph, "A True Account of the Battle of Jutland." How the American learned what went on behind the mists at Jutland, he has not divulged, but it is understood that study of the original battle charts, in the light of his knowledge of the sea and ships, supplied the first clue.

The official narrative takes up its more important phases of review at 6:15 p. m. It was at that hour that the British forces joined, and Admiral Jellicoe with his full strength now available to bear against inferior German forces turned to deploy on the port wing to form a line of battle on a course southeast by southeast, with an advance fan of cruisers and destroyers stretched between the German fleet and approach to their base. The British narrative says, "The enemy could only be seen fitfully through the mist" and adds that no battleships could fire for many minutes together because observation was so poor.

These were the conditions, with the Germans steaming at a speed of 17 knots, sinking the Invincible, Defense and Warrior and striking mortal blows to the Black Prince as they went, when Admiral Scheer had first recourse to his uncomprehened manoeuvre to save his fleet from envelopment.

The German fleet reversed direction three times in a series of movements that look on the combined chart like a whirligig, and this is now brought out and described by the admiralty narrative as it was described by the American historian. The admiralty narrative's observations of the causes for each of the several "swing-abouts" by the German fleet take issue with the strategic motives given in Admiral Scheer's report.

The first German manoeuvre of

CLUB IS PROVING POPULAR

At A Recent Shoot Held in the East End Some Excellent Scores Were Made.

The Rifle Club has been making steady progress since its inception. Recently a shoot was held on the Clubs range at East End. Twelve people participated in the shoot and some excellent scores were made at short range firing. A great many of the young men in Middlesboro have evidenced their keen interest in this sport by joining the organization.

The age limit is 16. Plans are in readiness for affiliation with the National Rifle Association. The National Rifle Association is sponsored by the United States Government the War Dept. is especially anxious that civilians keeps up shooting during peace times and so through the National Rifle Association does a great deal in the way of supplying rifles, ammunition and the like to carry on target and range practice. By this connection and membership in the Association the club receive the following:—

Club shoots will be held regularly on the range.

In time with the aid of several men who are already affiliated with the Rifle club it is hoped that the range can be increased and a regulation 500 yards range put down and have everything from targets to pits informing to the best ranges in the country. Middlesboro is geographically situated that it will be a center for shooting in this part of the state and with a range that will measure up as it is planned, it will be very likely that many county and statewide championship shoots will be held here.

There will be a meeting on Monday night at 8 p. m. in the office of the Playground and Recreation Association in the city hall. We urge that you attend this important meeting, officers will be elected and regulations for membership made.

Verdict of Homicide Given In Edwards Case, By Coroner

Finger Prints Taken Of Edwards After Removal to Jail.

MYSTERY MAN

No Clue to Man Said To Have Driven From Fairfield With Shoulder Wound.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 4.(AP)—Fingerprints were taken of Dr. George T. Edwards following his removal yesterday from a hospital to the Bessemer jail where he is being held in connection with the death of his wife whose skull was crushed after she had been given an anaesthetic.

Before being transfered from the hospital, Dr. Edwards on advice of his attorney George Ross, refused to allow county identification expert to take the fingerprints. It was announced soon after the refusal that plans for the physician to attend the funeral of his wife in Montgomery had been abandoned and he was then taken to the Bessemer prison in custody of Chief Deputy Hill and other officers. On their way they passed by the Edwards home where the doctor claims he was shot in the hand while trying to fight off an intruder who had already slain his wife.

The fingerprints will be compared with those obtained by officials in the Edwards home. Should they prove to be other than those of Dr. Edwards some credence would be given to his report that he and his wife were attacked by a marauder.

Another development of the day other than the last minute change of plans for Dr. Edwards to attend his wife's funeral, was a verdict of "unlawful homicide" by Deputy Coroner J. J. Crowe in the death of Mrs. Edwards. The verdict was not amplified, the formal language being made a matter of record.

It was announced tonight that Deputy Solicitor Ben Perry of Bessemer and Dr. Edwards would hold a conference tomorrow to arrange the preliminary trial and other court proceedings.

Two clues which officials hoped would help solve the mystery have so far been unavailing. Efforts have failed to find where the two bottles of anaesthetic found in the home were purchased and by whom. Dirt in the Edwards yard has been sifted in vain in an endeavor to find the bullet which pierced Dr. Edwards' arm. The physician used a 38 calibre revolver. Should a bullet of any other size be found, a point would be established in support of his story.

Another report which added mystery to the crime was being investigated today by officers. It was that a man believed to be wounded in the shoulder and without a coat was seen leaving Fairfield in an automobile a few minutes after Dr. Edwards made known the tragedy in his home. Hospitals are be-

CHINESE PRAISE POSTAL CARRIERS

The administration is singularly favored in the quality of the services they have rendered for it is to these services that the extraordinary integrity and security of the mails are due.

Mention is made of the new arrangements concluded for the payment of the railways on a space basis and the many courtesies received from the directors and managers in the past. MUST DISCOVER COMMUNITY GOODS

Such Knowledge Should Include Good and Bad Features of Existing Conditions.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 5.—The community score card is a great asset in vcational development. Prof. G. Ivan Barnes, state director of vocational education, said today.

Vocational development includes all training which has a vocational bearing, he said, such as vocational guidance, occupational experience, manual training, boys' and girls' club work, farm and home demonstration work, as well as training for specific vocations.

"In order to lay a good foundation for future constructive work in any line in a community it is desirable to know its present status as definitely as possible," he said. "Such knowledge should include both the good and bad features of existing conditions.

"Training for citizenship is often limited in the schools and elsewhere to instruction regarding civic affairs and the obligations of citizens relating thereto. The program is being made much broader and to include in it whatever relates to mental developmnet, health and physical development, vocational development, nurturing of patriotism, appreciation of our government, and the social and moral development of the indivual and the community."

GIVING THE DOG A SQUARE DEAL

Somewhere in the State of Kansas, west of the Missouri River and Kansas City, is the home of two sisters who have for many years waged a winning battle in the effort to aid and comfort friendless and suffering dogs. They are not wealthy women who have found interest in a casual undertaking, but women who have been compelled to earn, by hard work, the means devoted to this unpretentious charity. They have not courted fame, yet they seem in a fair way of winning considerate recognition because of the simple methods they have followed in doing acts of kindness and unostentatiously. They have given where giving meant sacrifice and have not withheld their meager bounty while they inquired as to the antecedents of the homeless animals they have befriended.

These women are known among their neighbors as "the Jacobs sisters." One keeps the house and devotes her time to the care care of the animals which come to them. The other works as a bookkeeper in a town a dozen miles from home, going to and from business daily. In the twenty years since they began this undertaking they have not been aided by outsiders, but during the time they have nursed and restored hundreds of homeless dogs, disowned by those who should have cared for them, and have fed and sheltered them until good homes were provided by neighboring farmers or townspeople.

How many who read of these unselfish acts have ever had the privilege of ministering to and restoring one of these helpless or abused creatures? It is an experience worth as much, or more, to the benefactor as to the obect of his kindness. Give a dog a good name. It is a splendid investment. Too many reverses the process, and it is as true that a dog almost as certainly lives up to a bad reputation as to a good one. People are that way, too, and so perhaps these women who are devoting all they possess and all they can earn to this unassuming charity realize thta their work is not in any sense experimental.—Christian Science Monitor.

Did You Ever Stop to Think

By E. R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

THAT neglected property is an eye-sore to all.

THAT unsightly pile of rubbish of rubbish in alleys, unbeauty to a city. Keep your city easy to look at.

THAT well kept residential and business property adds kept lawns, weeds and numerous other such items should be kept cleaned up.

THAT every citizen should do his or her best to keep the home city clean.

THAT public sentiment will help city officials and property owners to do so.

THAT if you are not satisfied with the looks of your city, you can't expect strangers to be satisfied with its looks.

THAT there is little encouragement for business concerns to keep their places of business clean when the streets in front are littered with wast and dirt.

A CITY SHOULD ALWAYS BE CLEAN. Those that are not should be cleaned up and kept clean.

EVERETT TRUE—By Condo

THE BUSY MAN'S NEWSPAPER

HUNT'S DAILY LETTER

By Harry B. Hunt

WASHINGTON—That rambunctuous Republicans, rejoicing over the party majority in the recent election, may be "feeling their oats" a bit too much is suggested by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, himself a Republican who carried Kansas by the largest majority ever given a candidate west of the Mississippi river.

"The resut of the election," says Capper, "was a repudiation of destructive and radical proposal. But it was not a mandate to sweep liberalism out of the Republican party.

"A swelled head is as dangerous in a political party as it is in an individual. It would be deplorable if the Republican party should let its recent victory "go to its head!"

Cappers warning came the day after the Republican caucus had voted to throw La Follette, Ladd, Frazier and Brookhart out of the party and to withhold from them any future committee assignments.

And it forecast the probable opposition to such disciplining of other liberals within the party, such as Norrih, Howell, Borah, Couzens, Hiram Johnson and perhaps Harrold.

In any showdown on the floor, whether in this Congress or the next, this group, unless conservative Democrats broke over to the support of the old guard Republicans, would be sufficient ot override the dictates of the G. O. P. doctrinaires.

Capper sees, what the old guard in the Senate does not recognize, that the recent election was more of a Coolidge endorsement than a Republican endorement.

He holds that this is particularly true of the result in the west, which cinched the election for the G. O. P. The west, Capper maintains did not turn reactionary or even conservatiive. If it had, he himself would have been defeated.

"It chose," Capper says, "a course between ultra-radicalism and hard-boiled conservatism. It remains still steadfast in support of reasonable, moderate, sane and safe progressivism."

And then he sounds a warning that, at this time, comes as a jar, ring note on the ears of the cocksure and jubilant old guard group:

"The west," he warns, "can get along without the Republican party, but the Republican party cannot get along without the west."

A backstop for the famous Coolidge luck is an old necklace worn of late by Mrs. Coolidge. Pendant from the necklace are seven skillfully carved ivory elephants.

The superstitiously inclined say that more than mere coincidence is behind the fact that she wore the necklace at the final game of the world series, which Washington won, and on election day when Cal's plurality broke all records.

Shortly before the illness and operation which caused his death, Secretary of Agriculture, Henry Wallace completed the writing of his memoirs.

Official Washington is wondering just how much details of the battle that raged inside the Harding cabinet between Wallace and some of his fellow cabinet members will be disclosed.

One of the bitterest contests in any recent cabinet raged between Wallace and former Secretary of Interior, Fall. Fall was fighting for the transfer to his department of the nation's immense forest reserves.

Wallace's own story of the inside maneuvorings in that battle would be especially illuminating.

Scarcely second in interest to this would be the inside story of the contest between himself and Secretary Hoover over the Bureau of Markets which Hoover wanted to take over.

Wallace's outspoken championship of means and measures not sponsored by his administration fellows provoke many of the warmest cabinet meetings of recent years.

WASHINGTON, Dec 5 - The first place John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education, makes for when he visits a strange city is the local muesum.

Museums, Tigert declares, are a much-neglected medium of education. Instead of places to be visited when seeking diversion, or to satisfy curiosity, museums should be definitely included as a part of our educational system and their exhibits so classified and arranged as to make them subjects for serious study.

I have traveled in a dozen countries and through many cities," Tiger says, "and if there was time to see only a few things I always visited the museums and cathedrals. These have much in common and, together, are the best and surest means of insight into the art, life and history of a given country."

By providing actual observation and contact with things difficult to visualize and understand from mere abstract teaching, the museum is able to do in a minute what the school room may not accomplish in a month for children in many lines of study.

"Too much emphasis has been laid in the past upon abstractions," this head of Uncle Sam's educational bureau maintains.

"Our schools are coming more and more to emphasize the need of contact with things. The value of actual perception is being realized more than ever before.

"To collect materials for a school museum is a basis for a most helpful project which can be expanded almost indefinitely in any community. The possibilities are unlimited."

Senators La Follette, Ladd, Brookhart and Frazier were read out of the Republican party by the senatorial caucus because they had dabbled in the affairs of a second party during the recent campaign. On the same basis, Florello La Guardia of New York probably would have been recommended for slow torture and quartering had he been a member of the sentae instead of the house.

For La Guardia's record of having declared himself under three distinct party designations within one year makes the double party affiliation charged against the insurgent senators seem rather mild.

La Guardia, who had served several terms in the house as a republican, from the twentieth New York district, was defeated this yaer for the G. O. P. nomination by Isaac Siegel.

Preferring to give up the Republican party rather than his seat in congress, La Guardia proceeded to get his name on the ticket as a socialist candidate and made the race anyway. And as a socialist, he was elected.

Although the socialist emblem was desirable as an expedient to get his name on the ticket, after it had served its purpose and won him the election, La Guardia decided he wasn't after all a real socialist and ought not be so designated. So he requested the clerk of the house to list his party affiliation, in the congressional directory, as 'progressive."

According to congressional records membership in three parties is one member never has been kown before.

Senator Jim Couzens of Detroit, having been elected for a full six year term, is understood ot be preparing to become a permanent resident of Washington.

At least word has gone out among Washington realtors that Jim is looking for a building site somewhere in the millionaire colonly along Massachusetts avenue, near Sheridian Circle and expects to spend a considerable number of thousands in erecting a new home.

In the meantime, he has leased the former home of Senator Frelinghausen of New Jersey for a one-year term.

Christmas is dashing madly toward us at the rate of 60 seconds a minute.

Our guess, just offhand, is that half the men looking at their watches don't care much what time it is.

Wouldn't it be a heap of fun if you could live up to your ideals without using any energy?

Winter would be much nicer if it didn't work at night.

In Boston, the center of culture, a man gave up his job because he couldn't chew tobacco at work.

This Claus family is about like all the others. Mrs. Santa Claus does the work and Mr. Santa Claus gets the credit.

DODGE BROTHERS REDUCE PRICES

Market Greatly Broadened, Dealer Anticipates An Even Better Year Than 1924.

Announcement of a reduction in the prices of all Dodge Brothers Passenger Cars was received today by Pruncle Motor Co., local Dodge Brothers Dealer.

The new prices are effective Monday, December 1st.

The reductions are especially sharp on the closed types. The Type A Sedan, for example on which the list price was formerly $1385, is now $1245. The Type B. Sedan, which formerly sold for $1250, f. o. b. Detroit, is now listed at $1095. There is also a reduction from $1095 to $995 in the list price of the Business Coupe. Dodge Brothers Roadster, under the new price, will sell for $855 and the Touring Car for $885.

The announcement from Dodge Brothers also carried the information that balloon tires are standard equipment on all passenger cars. New prices on Special Type cars are as follows:—

Special Roadster	$ 955.00
Special Touring	985.00
Special B. Coupe	1095.00
Special B. Sedan	1195.00
Special A. Sedan	1230.00

The special types carry such extra equipment as nickeled radiator shell, motormeter, front and rear bumpers, body stripe, steel disc wheels, scuff plates, cowl lights, and five ballon tires.

Announcement of these reductions provoked endless discussion throughout the entire industry. The year 1924 has been the most successful in Dodge Brothers history and it is now evident that the factory is determined to establish an even more enviable record in 1925. Obviously, the market for Dodge Brothers Motor Cars will be broadened immensurably by the lower prices, particularly the closed car types.

Substantial improvements in the appearance, riding comfort and other important details of construction and design, plus the car's long standing reputation for dependable performance, were responsible for the greatly accelerated demand during 1924. For a number of months production was maintained consistently at a rate close to 1000 cars per day.

Prices of Dodge Brothers Commercial Cars and Chasses are not affected by the reductions.

FRANCE WILL HONOR A POET IN ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

PARIS, Dec. 5.—(AP).—A special postage stamp has been issued by the postal authorities to mark the fourth centenary of the birth of the celebrated French lyric poet, Pierre de Ronsard, who was born in September, 1524.

The stamp, which is blue, bears the head of the poet, with the dates 1524-1924. Its denomination is 75 centimes, the amount affixed to letters going abroad, so it will be seen around the world. The issue will be withdrawn from sale Dec. 31.

Silver Platters Weigh Ten Tons

LONDON, Dec. 5.—(AP).—Hundreds of pieces of solid silver plate, part of the vast treasure of silver and silver gilt from the castle in Gmunden, Austria, of the late Duke of Cumberland, have been placed on show in a London salesroom. It is said that the castle was at one time equipped with enough silver to serve 1,000 guests without duplication of pieces, and that the collection included 9,000 solid silver dinner plates. The total weight of the silver was estimated at 10 tons.

Movie production will be reduced so maybe they will show the same films over instead of just the same plots.

Somebody could make a good movie of a mad dog chasing a tax collector for miles and miles and miles.

A Lesson For American Cooks

Housewives of this community who in order to express their sympathy with Armenian's orphans, plan to serve to their families a Golden Rule dinner next Sunday, December 7, need not think it necessary to exclude meat from the menu.

Indeed, to do so would create quite a wrong impression of the sufficiency of the diet provided for the boys and girls who are living in the orphanages of the Near East Relief overseas. It is by no means a wholly vegetarian bill of fare on which these youngsters are nourished. Not every day but frequently they enjoy a liberal meat addition to their dinners, and their sympathizers in this country are at full liberty to choose for imitation, if taste so dictates, the meals that are thus amplified.

The favorite Armenian dish of pilaf, which is a sort of "stew" combination of meat, rice and green peppers, is a great standby in the orphanages, and can be very easily reproduced by any American kitchen in full demonstration of how tasteful it is. It should be observed, hower, that orphanage directors do not buy expensive steaks and roasts to be cut up into the pilaf pot. They know that there is just as much nourishment in the so-called "poorer cuts" of the beef animal—the chuck and the brisket and the shank and the plate—and if rightly cooked these portions are equally palatable.

Herein is a lesson which it would be much to the advantage of the American housewife also to learn.

If gettingup a Golden Rule dinner should start any considerable number of household providers to studying the uses of the cheaper goods in the meat markets, the sole benefit of the day will not be confined to Armenia. America, too, will get a real profit in the line of domestic economy.

Meat dealers all say that if these "poorer cuts" were purchased at least occasionally by their well-to-do customers, the "best cuts" would be materially cheaper. It is the total waste of the former which makes it necessary to sell the latter at exaggerated prices.

It takes only more thorough cooking t make the cheap meats as acceptable as the dearer kinds. Perhaps this "Golden Rule Day" experience may convince many cooks of an important economical fact.

America Produces Vast Milky Sea

If all the milk in the United States last year was put into one gigantic can a thousand feet in diameter, it would reach almost half a mile into the clouds, being more than four times the height of the Washington Monument at the national capital, according to the Blue Valley Creamery Institute. The can would tower 2,893 feet in height, while the Washington Monument is only 500 feet high but 55 feet square.

Into the American milk can annually goes 11,925,252,411 gallons of white gold, valued at $2,566,000,000, the daily milkings of 21,675,000 cows. If the can was emptied it would make a river five feet deep and twenty feet wide, extening 3,775 miles in length.

Manila Government May Aid Students

MANILA, Dec. 5.—(AP).—The appointment of a Philippine government representative on the Pacific coast of the United States to look after the interests of Filipinos, especially young immigrants who are seeking employment to support themselves while at college, is under consideration by insular officials in view of the precarious situation of several hundred such students.

Manuel S. Rustia, Filipino commercial agent in Seattle, reports that no fewer than 700 Filipino students have arrived at that port during the last two months.

"This is becoming a serious problem for the Filipino community here," said Mr. Rustia, and the difficulties are expected to increase during the coming winter.

We Are A Nation Of Coffee Drinkers

Coffee is becoming a favorite mid-morning and mid-afternoon beverage.

The head of a nationally known chain of restaurants is authority for the statement that the drinking of coffee between meals by business men, and for that matter, business women, is attaining sufficient volume to merit close study in catering to this new trade.

Women shoppers also are finding in coffee a welcome relief from afternoon fatigue as attested by department store restaurants and soda fountains generally.

Recent reports of such eminent scientists as Professor Samuel C. Prescott, o fthe Massachusetts Institute of Technology may have contributed to this new tendency.

Professor Prescott says that coffee "is a beverage which properly prepared and rightly used gives comfort and inspiration, and augments mental and physical activities."

Restaurants and soda fountains have no well defined explanation for this between meals coffee trade, however. They are accepting it gratefully, and are studying the likes and dislikes of the men and women who appear sometimes at mid-morning, but in far greater numbers around 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Between meals coffee is having the effect of giving restaurants something of the club atmosphere, a suggestion of the coffee houses of old. Here and there is springing up a coffee house patterned on those which flourished before and after the American Revolution. Business deals are being closed, social and political campaigns are being mapped out, new gowns are designed—all across the table, with steaming coffee between.

Butter Fat Prices Show Large Gain

Butter-fat prices are over 80 per cent above the pre-war five year average, while feed costs have increased but from 6 to 24 per cent, according to the Blue Valley Creamery Institute, which is urging dairy farmers to better feeding programs as the quickest and most economical method of increasing butter-fat production prices.

During the past year the consumer's buying power has increased more than the price of butter. Wages of all union workers have been increased by 100 per cent since 1913, while the wages of railroad employees have risen 133 per cent. The Institute believes that production can be considerably increased during the coming year without danger of an over-supply. Over-production, they say, will not be caused by a too rapid increase in production, but by some outside cause, as a rapid decline in the public's ability to buy, or to a greatly increased importation. For the present, in view of industrial conditions, the outlook is bright.

In a report prepared by Dr. C. W. Larson, chief of the Bureau of Dairying of the United States Department of Agriculture, the average price of creamery butter for the years 1910 to 1914, inclusive, is represented as 100. Presenting corn, oats, and hay in the same way, he shows that on January 1, 1924, the figure for oats would be 105, say, 114, corn 124; and butter, 183. This means that the price of oats is but 5 per cent above the pre-war average, hay 14 per cent above, and corn 24 per cent, while the price of butter is over 80 per cent. With feed costs comparatively low in terms of production prices, it is time for the dairy farmer to turn his attention to better feeding, as experiments prove this to be the easiest means of making more profit from milking costs.

Push Milk Survey Along Big Sandy

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 5.—East Kentucky's first milk survey, conducted under the direction of Miss Sarah Vance, head fo the Bureau of Foods, and drugs of the State Board of Health, in cooperation with the American Child Health Association, is being pushed along the Big Sandy with the prospects of being completed by December 15 when the traveling laboratory sent here by the Child Health Association, reaches Pineville.

Announcement of the work accomplished by the survey was made by Miss Vance, who is endeavoring to have the traveling laboratory return to Kentucky next year. Last January a similar survey was made in southwestern Kentucky with the result that bad milk was found in many small cities and in Paducah the report of the milk survey was the signal for a clean milk campaign.

The traveling laboratory opened its work in Ashland November 10 taking in Pineville, Grayson, Paintsville, Prestonsburg, Louisa, Greenup and Russell the first week.

Until today the places visited have been Mt. Sterling, Morehead, Richmond, Berea Stanford, Lancaster, Irline.

The purpose of the survey, Miss Vance said, is to determine the quality of milk being furnished in each community and where it is below standard, the State Board of Health takes action to eliminate dangerous milk. Efforts also are to educate the people into the greater use of milk, the mountain section being cited as an example of a series of communities where cows are practically unknown.

Within a few months the places where sub-standard milk is found will be revisited by the State Board of Health inspector.

"ships right about," by which every vessel in the long, curved column swung simultaneously to reverse direction to the westward, served to relieve the situation by which the Germans were heading into the mouth of a trap set by the British deployment. Instead when the turn-together was executed, the German fleed was steaming safely away from the British formation under cover of a smoke screen. This manoeuvre was twice repeated without being known to the British until years afterward. Even now the admiralty narrative, after saying what actually happened, suggests explanation of the failure to comprehend the move by description of the conditions that prevailed with the sentence, "In the thickening mist and smoke the enemy was lost to sight, and a lull ensued which gave Admiarl Scheer a short and much needed respite." He was running away, but the British fleet did not know it.

With the German fleet out of sight at 6:42 p. m., the British admiral ordered the course altered by divisions to the southeast. Then the tide of battle turned again, and at 6:55 Admiral Scheer used the same simultaneous swing of his ships to turn around the head to the east in attack. This offensive measure by the Germans, as described in the narrative, was "straight into the center of the arc formed by the British fleet. In a few minutes the leading (German) squadron and battle cruisers would be threatened with envelopment and the concentrated fire of practically the whole Grand Fleet. The High Seas fleet seemed to be rushing to destruction."

Captain Frothingham has called attention to the remarkable fact that the German admiral had thus voluntarily placed his fleet again in the same position from which he had once withdrawn. Admiral Scheer has since said that this move in attack, which brought a lesser German force against one which Lord Sydenham has described as "27 of the finest battleships in the world," was intended as a surprise blow to upset British plans and to facilitate the German fleet breaking loose to get back to its base at night. The admiralty narrative says that Admiral Scheer's motives "should be accepted with more reserve. His intention was more probably to slip past the rear of the British fleet and make for home."

At the time that the British Grand Fleet saw the Germans again, heading toward them at a range of less than 10,000 yards, "the mists cleared for a few minutes and the Seydlitz and Derfflinger came under tremendous fire. The visibility was all in favor of the British at the time.

One effect of Admiral Scheer's surprising swing against the British was to force the Grand Fleet in two movements to turn away 15 degrees. Admiral Scheer has said that his object was attained, and the third turn together of the German fleet followed at 7:17. Of this the narrative of the admiralty says, "As soon as Admiral Scheer realized that he was facing the main British fleet, he turned his battle fleet to the westward and ordered the battle cruisers and flotillas to attack in order to cover his retreat." Admiral Scheer's representation that his object having been attained, the fleet withdrew, should be considered with the statement attributed to Van Hase that "the High Seas fleet found itself in a trap and sent battle cruisers and flotillas ahead to extricate it," the narrative continues, adding "What might have been a disastrous blunder was by a stroke of luck turned to Admiral Sheer's advantage." Admiral Scheer's simultaneous turn at 7:17 included both the battle cruisers and the battle ships, he has said.

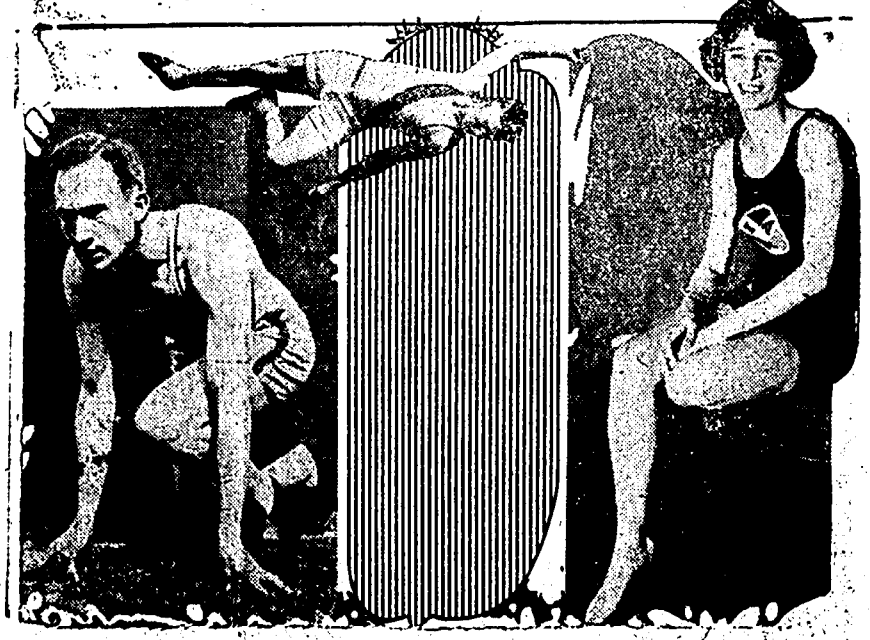
Season's Chief Record Holders



Three of the outstanding athletic notables of the past season were Sybil Bauer, back-stroke swimmer of Chicago; Jackson Scholz, New York sprinter, and Harold Osborne, high jump star of the Illinois A. C.

Recently the A. A. U. officials, in annual conference, accepted as official marks made by this trio of performers during the 1921 season.

Scholz ran the 200 meters in 20 9-10 seconds in the final Olympic tryouts last summer. This mark has been accepted as an A. A. U. and a world record.

The same is true of Osborne's mark in the high jump, Osborne leaped 6 feet 8 1-4 inches at Urbana, Ill., last May. The A. A. U. lords thought well enough of the evidence presented to accept the record.
